'Here Lies Jeremy Troy'

"Here Lies Jeremy Troy" grows into a comedy of errors after Charlie Bickle, an old college buddy of Jeremy Troy, arrives at Jeremy's home on the very night that Jeremy has invited his boss, Mr. Ivorsen, to dinner to discuss Jeremy's impending promotion in the law firm he works for.

Charlie, an artist who makes his living by sponging off former classmates (in alphabetical order), blackmails Jeremy into letting him stay over that night. Charlie's imaginative though ill-planned schemes to help Jeremy impress his boss plunge Jeremy deeper in the mirthful mire.

The plot "slovens" as we learn that Jeremy, though a lawyer, never went to law school. Add to this problem the entrance of Tina Winslow, a model and girlfriend of Charlie's to impersonate Jeremy's wife who has left him temporarily. Compound those problems with the return of Kathryn Troy just in time for the big dinner and for the faked domestic scene between Jeremy and Tina. The result is utter but merry mayhem which author Sharkey finally resolves to everyone's satisfaction.

Synopsis of Scenes

The time is the present. The action takes place during a 24 hour period in February. The locale of the play is the Troy home in New Jersey, just a short drive from New York City.
